

Fire Wardens Act On Smoke Nuisance

Call Meeting With City Mill Owners;
Complaints From Residents Increase

City fire wardens today agreed to call a joint meeting soon with Victoria mill owners for next week to battle the city's growing smoke nuisance problem.

It is possible the meeting may result in the beginning of an anti-smoke board, such as the city of Vancouver set up some time ago.

Anti-British Mobs In Iran Defy Military

Britain Ready For Oil Nationalization

By FRED ZUSY

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A demonstration by 50,000 persons in Tehran today opened a Communist-front barrage against the British and Americans keyed to the explosive oil issue. Tanks and troop-trucks patrolled the tense capital.

It was the biggest Communist-front demonstration thus far in Tehran, and it was the signal for other demonstrations planned at key points throughout Iran, called by the Communist Tudeh Party as a protest against "British-American imperialism."

The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, chief target of the demonstrators, announced it was authorizing the wives and children of its British, Pakistani and Indian employees to leave Abadan, the oil port, "on leave" at company expense. Holdings of the company, controlled by the British government, are marked for nationalization by the Iranian government.

N. R. Seddon, representative of the company in Iran, was to see the Iranian Finance Minister tomorrow—the deadline of an ultimatum to the company to confer with the Iranian government on how the liquidation of the firm's holdings will be accomplished.

U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady arranged a luncheon meeting, meanwhile, with Sir Francis Shepherd, the British Ambassador, and F. Mohammed Mossadegh, Iran's Nationalist Premier who has sparked the nationalization program. This meeting was to be the first meeting of the three together, and in view of Grady's offer to mediate the dispute, was looked upon by some as an optimistic sign that informal talks could widen into formal negotiations.

GOOD WILL SOUGHT
LONDON (AP)—Britain pleaded with Iran today to negotiate the tense Iranian oil issue in an atmosphere of good will, "taking full account of the dangerous potentialities of the present situation."

The British statement, delivered by Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison in the House of Commons, rejected one-sided Iranian action in nationalizing the giant Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, and said Britain is ready to accept some form of nationalization of her oil interest in Iran.

Moscow issued another propaganda blast on the issue today. Its Literary Gazette charged Britain with trying to blackmail Iran and frighten the Iranians with military force.

SAYS RELIGION BEING FORCED UPON PUPILS

CALGARY (CP)—An Edmonton, clergyman said Monday's Roman Catholic teachers are forcing religious education of Protestant pupils in some Alberta public schools.

The clergyman, Rev. G. H. Villett, principal of Alberta College in Edmonton, spoke at the final session of the Alberta conference of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Villett said his information came from several centres, including St. Paul, a town northeast of Edmonton.

Asks Combined Opposition To Phone Increase

Subject Before
Island Parley

Mayor Percy George today urged that all municipalities in the province put forth concerted effort, rather than individual briefs, in protest against the B.C. Telephone Co. application for increased rates.

As president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, he authorized City Solicitor Arthur Patton to introduce the subject of a "co-ordinated, cooperative front" at the conference of Vancouver Island Association of Municipalities to be held in Nanaimo City Hall June 13.

The mayor himself is moving to have the entire U.B.C.M. including the city of Vancouver, present a concerted effort rather than piecemeal views in the fight against the rate increase.

"Since the provincial government is just as much interested as the cities in the welfare of the citizens, I hope it will take action to oppose the increase," said Mayor George.

Meanwhile, Esquimalt will join Victoria and Saanich in opposing the application of the British Columbia Telephone Company for a 12.5 per cent increase. In exchange rates, Reeve A. I. Thomas said today his council would undoubtedly vote in favor of lodging a protest to the federal Board of Transport Commissioners at its meeting next Monday night.

Victoria and Saanich councils have already taken such action. Oak Bay Council will decide what stand it will take when it meets Wednesday of next week. Oak Bay Councillor George Murdoch expressed himself as being opposed to the application.

U.S. Air Chief Agreed With MacArthur 'Firing'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg testified today Gen. MacArthur was fired because it "seemed sounder" to vest the Korea command in someone who was "more nearly in agreement with U.S. war policy."

The Air Staff Chief told the Senate committee investigating MacArthur's dismissal considerable latitude must be given a theatre commander in following Washington directives. Hence, he said, agreement on basic policies is necessary.

"Knowing that, Gen. Mac-Arthur was an ardent advocate of a different policy, from a military point of view it seemed sounder to have someone, with those rather broad directives, who was more nearly in command with government policy," he said.

Vandenberg in his second day of testimony also:

1. Rejected a Republican suggestion that—like MacArthur—he should be relieved from command because last December he "criticized" the ban on American blows against the Communist supply—"sanctuary"—in Manchuria.

Vandenberg said he was just "explaining" the ban and was not criticizing policy.

2. Said United Nations forces have lost more planes in Korea than the Communists because our pilots are flying about 500 times as many missions as the Reds and are operating at low, "hand grenade" altitude.

3. Said he believed Japanese cities "quite probably" would be attacked if Russia entered the Korean war.

4. Expressed belief that "there is a prospect of achieving" the United Nations purpose in Korea of restoring international peace and security in that area.

S. Koreans In Big Gains; Other Advances Slowed

TOKYO (Wednesday) (AP)—South Korean troops stabbed forward 12 miles Tuesday against little or no opposition to seize the east coast port of Kansong, 26 miles inside North Korea.

Other United Nations forces on the central front gained control of an important ridge overlooking the escape route for thousands of Korean and Chinese Communists at the eastern end of the Hwachon Reservoir.

The allied push was designed to slam the door on Red troops still south of the reservoir, said a pooled dispatch.

The allies were within four miles southeast of Yanggu on the last ridge line leading to that strategic town.

The Reds fought bitterly to delay the allied troops on the mountainous central front. Two Chinese divisions were wiped out in a four-day battle on the central front, south of the 38th parallel. The U.S. 8th Army said the Chinese lost 18,000 men—killed, wounded or captured—in the single battle.

Smaller but equally stubborn fights raged across Korea north of 38. Allied troops were held to limited gains.

AMERICANS LINK
Field dispatches reported allied troops behind the fighting front knifed five miles up the Hyon-Inje road to link with Americans fighting slowly southward.

A delayed and heavily-censored dispatch from AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said a powerful U.N. task force bogged down Monday northeast of Inje.

Other armored units ran into the same trouble as they headed northwest toward Yanggu, 10 miles away on the end of Hwachon Reservoir. AP correspondent Jim Becker reported Americans hacked out one mile Tuesday against rugged opposition.

South Koreans advanced to the southern banks of the 20-mile-long reservoir.

The costly Chinese stand on the central front may have allowed the bulk of retreating Red forces to slip back across the 38th parallel and escape pursuing U.N. forces.

ESTIMATE 150,000 CASUALTIES
The allied counter-attack had pushed the Reds back 30 to 40 miles. It virtually wiped out gains the Communists made in two costly spring offensives. The Reds, by 8th Army estimates, paid nearly 150,000 casualties for those temporary gains.

The navy announced that farther north blockading warships have killed or wounded more than 9,200 Reds in their siege of Wonsan, now in its fourth month.

Bright sunshine Tuesday brought allied planes out in force.

TRYING SOLO POLAR HOP

OSLO (AP)—Charles Blair started a non-stop solo flight over the North Pole today in the converted P-51 Mustang fighter in which he set the non-stop New York-London record last Jan. 31.

Fairbanks, Alaska, is his destination.

Carrying the first polar altimeter—3,000 letters—Blair took off from Oslo's Gardermoen air base.

Lake Dragged For Driver
A Campbell River R.C.M.P. detachment today was still grappling for the body of Emanuel S. Hein, of Courtenay, employee of Granite Bay Timber Co., driver of the jeep which plunged into 100 feet of water in Bear Lake Monday afternoon.

Police began working soon after the accident to recover the body. The lake is situated about 40 miles west of Campbell River. A raft has been constructed to help the grappling operations.

Hein's jeep was proceeding along a narrow logging road when it presumably struck a soft shoulder and hurtled into the lake with its driver, police said.

B.C. SLAYER THANKS HANGMAN
Vernon Indian Warns All Youths That Crime Does Not Pay; Repents

VANCOUVER (CP)—Joseph Arthur Oullette, 25-year-old slayer of two Chinese market gardeners, died on the gallows today at Oakalla Prison farm here.

"Thanks very much," he said to his guards as the hangman placed the hood over his head. "Be sure and look after all the boys and keep them happy."

The trap was sprung shortly after 6 a.m. At 6.18 he was pronounced dead.

He was convicted of the Nov. 25, 1949, murder of Mah Sing and Lee On on their ranch at Vernon, B.C. The Crown said robbery was the motive for the double killing.

Oullette, whose home was at Vernon, was a native of Winnipeg.

The young Indian youth had spent 18 months in jail and the death cell, and as he awaited the hangman penned a last message to all youths that "crime does not pay."

"I started out young," the message said. "The first thing I stole was a pair of skates, then it got worse. It never pays to be a tough guy... there is no fun in finding out the hard way, like I have."

Before the death march started from his cell, an hour-long mass was said by Father Paul G. Clark of North Vancouver Indian reservation and Father Edward McIntyre of Vancouver.

In his message, Oullette said: "Death is nothing; but it is the waiting and wondering if you will go to heaven or hell... I often wonder what it is like in the next world and where I will spend eternity. I hope it is."

12 Brigades Digging Way Through Blocked Tunnels

EASINGTON, Durham, Eng. (AP)—A violent explosion buried 78 British coal miners today behind a tunnel full of thousands of rocks. The bodies of 14 men were dragged out by rescuers and one man was taken out badly crushed and burned, but by late afternoon 63 still were entombed.

Twelve brigades of rescuers worked in teams through the tumbled rock attempting to clear 1,000 yards of blocked tunnel to reach the blast area, 900 feet underground at the large Easington coal pit.

H. E. Collins, production director of the Durham Coal Mining Division, said "we have not given up hope." But Fuel Minister Philip Noel-Baker told the House of Commons he feared it was "not at all probable" that any of the trapped men could have escaped through old tunnels branching off from the gas-laden explosion site.

By early afternoon rescue parties had driven through more than 300 yards of debris. Mining officials said the coal face, where it is believed the majority of men are trapped, was another 700 yards away.

Fresh air was being forced through neighboring seams in hopes it would filter through to the men.

TWO BLOWN CLEAR
The violent blast blew two men clear of the tumbling debris. One said he was lifted and tossed 60 yards down the tunnel. Another said he was thrown 20 to 30 yards.

"A great cloud of black gas" poured down the shaft, said George Williams, twin brother of 19-year-old Matthew Williams who was the first brought out alive.

The explosion caught the miners just as the day-shift was relieving the night workers about 1 1/2 miles from the bottom of the pit hoisting shaft.

Cause of the disaster was not known.

One of the rescue workers told reporters "it is unlikely that any of the miners still in there are alive. It was terribly hot and we got some idea of the force of the explosion."

Crowds of relatives and friends waited anxiously at the pithead in a cold wind blowing off the North Sea.

The Easington Colliery, one of the largest in the Durham County coalfield, is 10 miles east of the City of Durham. Part of its workings runs under the North Sea.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

'OLD CONTEMPTIBLES'

LONDON—After leaving Petersham church and Capt. Vancouver's grave, we returned to London to accept the invitation of the Lord Mayor of London to a luncheon arranged at the Mansion House in honor of the annual memorial and parade of the "Old Contemptibles" Association of the London area.

It was my good fortune, at the luncheon, to sit next to Lt. Gen. Sir Ronald Charles, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., the president of the national association, and from whom I learned many things which I didn't know before about that gallant and dwindling little body of old soldiers.

For instance, they take a justifiable pride in being "the most exclusive association for ex-servicemen in the world." That seems a "tall" claim, yet you can understand it when you learn that membership is limited strictly to the soldiers of the "contemptible little army"—as the Kaiser scoffingly described it—which held at bay and kept the Germans from Britain's shores in 1914.

And to be an "Old Contemptible" one has to be the holder of the clasp to the 1914 Star, bearing the dates Aug. 5 to Nov. 22, 1914. Today, 37 years after, there must be many Britons, who do not realize that even the men who went to France between those dates but who remained at bases are not eligible for membership in the "Old Contemptibles."

PATRIOTIC PARADE
SO WHEN we went out onto the Mansion House balcony after lunch, to watch the Lord Mayor in state robes, accompanied by the Sheriffs and Sword-bearer, in their scarlet and sable-trimmed robes, take the salute as the remnants of that gallant little army paraded past, I realized that we were watching men who had gone through their baptism of fire 37 years ago.

And I quite unashamedly admit that my eyes were not dry. It was intensely moving to see those old men, some lame, some very bent, some straight as old ramrods, but all marching with heads high and be-medalled breasts well out, stepping it out to the strains of "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary"—along streets whose comparatively recently-charred ruins and gaping rubble remind you how futile war really is.

CABBIES AND COLONELS
IN ITS ranks were men of all walks of life. Some looked like "cabbies" and busmen, others like clerks and salesmen, some like colonels or butlers—all reunited for that one day in the indissoluble memories of old comradeships, fashioned in the barracks room and forged in the furnace of battle.

Today the membership of the London area, with its 26 branches, consists of fewer than 2,000, and time is rapidly taking its toll of them. As Sir Charles observed, with obvious emotion: "Each succeeding anniversary finds our old comrades missing from the ranks, either too old or too ill to attend, or else because they have heard the Last Post."

CATHEDRAL SERVICE
FROM the Mansion House we went to St. Paul's Cathedral for the special memorial and parade service, at which the Lord Mayor and other dignitaries were joined by the Belgian and French ambassadors, as well as by a large congregation including many other ex-servicemen and their families.

Here again, it was a poignant scene as the color-bearers and standard-bearers of the "Old Contemptibles" marched in, as the drummers of the Coldstream Guards sounded the "Last Post" and the "Reveille"; as the organ pealed out the strains of "Lord God of Hosts"; as the boy sopranos of the choir gave their flute-like rendering of the Psalm, and as that great and historic edifice resounded to the fervent strains of God Save the King—sung as I have seldom heard it sung.

Silent On Arena Case
Fred N. Cabeldu and William Bridgewood, who were not re-elected to the arena commission at an "in camera" session of City Council Monday morning, today declined to comment on the matter.

Since the Fraternal Order of Eagles had previously written council urging that Mr. Bridgewood be retained on the commission when his term expired June 2, the membership is expected to discuss the matter at an executive meeting tonight at 8.

They may lodge a protest to City Council on its action.

Courtesy To Tourists
Victoria restaurants were urged today to extend true Canadian hospitality to tourists, by officials of the local branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association, supporting the National Tourist Service Week which opened across Canada Monday.

Vote Breaks Reds' North Italy Hold

Atlantic Pact Front Gives Leftists Worst Election Beating In Years

ROME (AP)—An anti-Communist Coalition has broken the extreme left wing hold on Italy's "Red north."

Incomplete returns today indicated Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Atlantic Pact front had given the Reds their worst beating in five years in provincial elections.

The Communists were kicked out of five provincial capital administrations they had held since 1945. De Gasperi's forces took a heavy majority of council seats in elections which ended Monday for a third of the country. The rest of the country votes later.

Interior Ministry results in 530 of 554 provincial council seats gave the anti-Communist bloc—a combination of the majority Christian Democratic Party, the Republican, Liberal and Anti-Communist Socialist parties—336 places to 164 for the Communist-leftwing Socialist bloc.

The returns intimated that anti-Communist forces will control city councils in 22 provincial capitals. The Communists hold two, and three are undecided.

The parties led by the De Gasperi won the port cities of Venice and Genoa—two top prizes in the municipal elections—and three other provincial capital administrations which were Communist for five years.

A late vote count from 306 of 329 precincts gave the pro-Communist bloc 104,815 votes to 102,776 for the De Gasperi forces, and observers familiar with the city forecast that the left wing would keep control of Bologna's Government by a narrow margin.

Reeve Pickles Promises 'Thorough Discussion'

Fire department matters concerning resignation of Fire Chief Harry McNichol, and election of Deputy Chief Arthur Bolster Monday night to take his place, will be "thoroughly discussed" by Central Saanich Council tonight, Reeve Sydney Pickles said today.

Mr. Bolster was elected the new chief at a meeting of the firemen's association. Adrian Butler will become deputy chief in his place and Vernon Wood assistant deputy.

Mr. McNichol resigned last week because of disagreement with Reeve Pickles on fire department matters.

"He's been given a raw deal," Councillor Lorne Thomson remarked. "When people start spending thousands of dollars of the ratepayers' money to put new fire-fighting equipment on an old chassis, who wouldn't complain."

Councillor Thomson's statement is most strange in view of the fact that the used truck referred to was fully and carefully examined by the former fire chief, Reeve Pickles said today.

He added: "It was purchased on Mr. McNichol's written approval, and the council resolution to make the purchase passed without a dissenting vote. And Councillor Thomson was at the meeting."

At the firemen's meeting Monday night it was decided to raise funds to buy an ambulance to be used free of charge for the benefit of the community.

Acheson

Acheson Faces Senators With Few Friends

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson's political allies are joining the movement to get him out of the cabinet.

He might be expected to resign within a matter of days except for President Truman's determination to keep his No. 1 adviser in office if it is possible to do so.

If Acheson must soon resign, the opportunity might come after he has appeared before the Senate committee investigating the discharge of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Acheson is due before the committee this week.

The Secretary's fellow Democrats will do what they can to protect a member of Mr. Truman's cabinet. But some of the investigators, including chairman Tom Connally, are up for re-nomination and re-election next year.

Council named J. Carl Pendray, former mayor, and W. Leonard Woodhouse, former Oak Bay reeve, to replace Cabeldu and Bridgewood. George L. Warren was reappointed.

No reason was given by Council for the shifts.

Delays Action When Charge Dismissed

Lawyer George F. Gregory Monday postponed action on his plan to challenge the validity of the city's Public Morals By-law after Magistrate H. C. Hall had dismissed a charge against his client, Robert H. D. Davis, 434 John Street, laid under the by-law in city police court.

Charge against Davis alleged he used insulting language at Hazel Hathaway, 2531 Government Street.

Magistrate Hall also dismissed a charge against Davis that he had assaulted Mrs. Hathaway. The complainant's testimony stood alone against that of Davis and his wife in the assault case and evidence of Davis and James Foyer in the other case.

BEAVER STOPS WORK, SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

CAMPBELL RIVER — A beaver hampered work of the American Argonaut Mining Company, broke up classes at the Campbell River School and attracted scores of curious residents who had never seen the hard-working rodent except in pictures.

The beaver got trapped Monday in a six-foot hole being dug on the Indian reservation for a power pole.

Children from the nearby school were allowed out to see the animal who was released with the aid of blocks of wood. The animal was last seen swimming through Discovery Passage en route to Quadra Island where there are less curious people and less man-made hazards.

Murdered Son's Face Caused Only Emotion

NELSON (CP) — John Davidoff, charged with murdering his son, Joe, showed emotion only when shown the boy's face, Sgt. W. H. Davidson, R.C.M.P., testified at a preliminary hearing at Castlegar Monday.

The 20-year-old son was shot in his bed April 16.

The sergeant said Davidoff told him he had not seen his son since 6:30 or 7 o'clock the previous evening. Accused had remained at home until the early afternoon the next day when the undertaker had come to remove the body.

As the body was being passed through a large number of people outside, mostly crying women, the accused asked if the boy's face could be exposed to allow his grandmother to see him. When this was done, the accused cried for a few moments.

LIFE INSURANCE POLICY

Earlier, a $2,500 life insurance policy was introduced as evidence. The father was named beneficiary in the policy made out on the life of Joe.

It was found in the trunk of the Davidoff house at the nearby village of Ostrow.

The trial is continuing with Magistrate W. C. Taylor presiding.

The Damaged Bridge

THE SOVEREIGN QUESTION IN THE free world, says Mr. Churchill, is not the obvious risk of widening war in Asia, but whether there is to be a fatal rift between Britain and the United States. "That," he adds, "is the point that haunts me and dwells with me." It should haunt and dwell with every thinking person.

Powerful forces are at work to destroy the friendship of the English-speaking peoples, on which the hope of the free world mainly rests. The American wave of feeling against Britain, loosed by the irresponsible actions of the Republican Party; the vacillation of a British Government, which lacks the power to govern; the lunatic fringe of British politics, led by men like Mr. Bevan, which almost seems to hate the United States more than it loves peace; even our pitiful C.C.F. in British Columbia, which proposes a kind of neutrality between the United States and Russia—all these elements of distrust and disintegration are now fully at work, giving aid and comfort, however unconsciously, to the Politburo.

Two main points of friction have brought the present grave divisions between Britain and the United States. They are, first, the struggle in Asia, where the United States has taken the initiative and largely borne the burden and where Britain has vainly sought an accommodation with the Chinese Communists. Second, the Middle East, where the situation is reversed, Britain being forced to take the initiative in trying to save the oil of Iran and the United States so far having given its ally inadequate support.

In Asia it is clear that last winter's gap between London and Washington has greatly narrowed, thanks to the moderation of the United States Government and the growing realism of British policy. Nevertheless, since the supreme objective of statesmanship on both sides must be to close the breach altogether, it is time, as The London Economist observes, for the British Government to re-define its position so clearly that there can be no mistake about it in the United States.

Britain, rather belatedly, has attempted to stop the export of all strategic materials from its Asiatic possessions to China. If it would now publicly repudiate any thought of returning Formosa to China while China remains an aggressor, and of seating it in the United Nations, the air would be greatly cleared. "The great danger," as Mr. Churchill says, "is in pursuing a policy of girding at the United States and giving them the impression that they are left to do all the work while we pull at their coat-tails and read them moral lessons in statecraft and the love we ought to have for China. I plead for a sense of proportion on the grounds of national safety and even survival."

Much more is involved, Mr. Churchill remarks, than the situation in Asia. The safety of Europe and hence of the whole free world depends absolutely on the fullest support of the United States, whose Government's efforts to support Europe are continually undermined by the widespread American feeling that Britain and the Europeans are not reliable allies. However unjust this may be, it exists and has been fanned into new flame by the MacArthur incident on one side and by the uncertainties of the British Government on the other.

The same over-riding need of unity applies to the Middle East, a point at least as important strategically as China. The United States Government, says The Economist, does not yet realize how much mischief its policy has done in that area, "never willing to take responsibility itself, but equally unwilling to give any help to those who do bear the responsibilities of the western world. . . . There is fully as much need for a re-examination of American Middle Eastern policy as there is of British Far Eastern policy."

The bridge between the British and American peoples, which survived an explosion last winter, on the issue of declaring China an aggressor, is in desperate need of repair. Russia's main hope today is to take the English-speaking peoples by surprise, too stupid or too dilatory to repair it.

Beyond Our Means

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BRITISH Columbia Government who went to Ottawa last week to discuss with the Federal Government the future of old age pensions, took with them a very special case. It arises mainly out of the attractive climate of British Columbia, which draws to the mild coastal area thousands of aged and infirm people from all over Canada.

The right of these people to come here and live on their old age pensions is undeniable. This would cease to be a nation if any Canadian were prevented from moving about it as he chose. Since this coast is the best place in Canada for aged and sick people to live we may expect large numbers of them here. Once the old age pension becomes universal at the age of 70 next January many aged residents of the prairies and the east, assured of a small income, will certainly decide to spend it during their last years in the vicinity of Vancouver and Victoria.

The Provincial Government will not pay any part of the cost of the universal pension. In that respect its expenses will not be increased by a new influx of pensioners. But in other respects its expenses are bound to increase.

In the first place, the Government at present provides medical treatment for all pensioners and when everyone is given a pension at the age of 70 the cost of these services would be greatly expanded.

Secondly, the province is bound under the new arrangement, if it is accepted, to provide half the cost of means-test pensions—but not necessarily to provide medical treatment—for those between the ages of 65 and 70. It is to be expected that many Canadians from other provinces will come here to enjoy the means-test pension and there may be enough of them to raise the Government's costs to an impossible figure.

British Columbia, in short, may be loaded down with far more than its share of Canada's social services. Either the Federal Government will have to make some new arrangement to cover the peculiar British Columbia situation or the Provincial Government will be compelled to refuse pensions to the people between 65 and 70 until they have lived here for some years.

It will be unfortunate if such a residential limitation has to be imposed but the Government may have no option if it is threatened by costs which it cannot bear. The Government should remember, however, that among the other governments it has been the leader in demanding huge increases in social services and it should have foreseen what they would involve.

As in many other of its excellent but expensive policies the Government finds that the bill must be paid sometime. After a lush and easy period, it is now hard pressed financially, with a little economy a few years ago the Government could have avoided its present dilemma, against which it was repeatedly warned. Having refused all warnings and apparently supposed that there was no end to its revenues and the taxpayer's patience, the Government is now reaping the results of its extravagance.

Give Us The Facts

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT evidently intends to dam Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park to develop power for Vancouver Island's expanding industry. True, the water controller must hold a public hearing before the Power Commission can proceed with this project but, as Mr. Roderick L. Halg-Brown, the distinguished Island author and conservationist writes to the Vancouver press, this hearing may be "merely a tedious formality, a sop to public opinion, but I don't know a reason in the world why it should be."

Mr. Halg-Brown believes that sufficient power can be developed without raising Buttle Lake so high that Strathcona Park will be ruined. He thinks that the whole job could be done on Upper Campbell Lake without invading the park. Whether he is right or wrong, it is the business of the water controller to get all the facts and to get them publicly when his official hearing begins. Vancouver Island is rightly concerned about the future of its great park with its immense potential value not only as a tourist attraction but as a resort for the Island people. The Government insists that it will not destroy the park by raising the lake. If this is so, the Government and the Power Commission should be able to prove it at the public hearing.

The public will insist on receiving not some general assurance but the detailed explanation of the power scheme, its effect upon the lake level, on the few available beaches, on the local timber.

It is for the Government and Power Commission to demonstrate also that Upper Campbell Lake cannot supply the needed power, a point still far from clear.

The water controller's hearing should not be a "tedious formality" but a painstaking assessment of the rival claims of power and park preservation. If Buttle Lake is to be dammed the Government's objective should be to dam it with the least possible injury to one of the Island's largest assets.

Another Educational Accolade

TO THOSE FAMILIAR WITH THE educational and educative background of his family, Dr. James A. Gibson's appointment this month to the newly created post of Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science at Carleton College, Ottawa, will seem entirely fitting. An outstanding graduate of Victoria schools, he had been awarded many distinctions, including a Rhodes Scholarship, before attaining the post of lecturer in Economics and Government at the University of British Columbia, and later joining the teaching staff of Carleton College when it opened its doors in 1942.

For several years Dr. Gibson served in the Department of External Affairs, and as a member of the secretariat of the office of the Prime Minister during Mr. King's later years in office.

An assiduous student of international affairs and, on many occasions a Canadian representative at UNESCO meetings, his particular knowledge should be of inestimable value to him in the post to which he has been appointed.

His friends will wish him well in his new office in the education field—a field with which his father and other members of the family have enjoyed close identification for many years.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

WHILE driving through a lovely British Columbia valley the other day, I passed a motor court or motel known as the Casanova. On reading the sign I averted dangerously and became a menace to traffic. Even now, days later, whenever I think of a Casanova Motel I get out of control. What, I ask myself, goes on in such a place? I don't know very much about the great and disgusting Casanova, except that he thought himself quite a boy with the girls. I doubt if he knew very much about himself either. . . . I think he got plumb subjective about himself and went in for little inaccuracies here and there. I have spent some years in listening to witnesses giving evidence, and I fear I cannot swallow the unsupported testimony of Casanova on the subject of Casanova.

I couldn't see any Don Juan Motor Camp, which was a pity. I didn't even notice a Gay Lothario Motel. Maybe I was driving too fast and overlooked it. I didn't see any Ceilini Court either. Or Libertine Lodge. Doubtless such places exist, though perhaps not so frankly labelled. If ever I get rich enough to buy or build a resort, I think I'll put out a huge sign saying HAREM HOUSE. That ought to make people stop at my place. Or at least drive off the road into the ditch. I think I'd better buy a wrecking-car too.

THE MOTEL A LA MODE

I WAS studying other motels also. From what I can gather, life in a motel is not much more costly than life in a first-rate hotel in a big city. I had a fantastically bad dinner . . . so bad that it gave me convulsions of laughter as well as dyspepsia . . . at a famous B.C. motel the other night, and it cost me only three dollars for each of us. If you take into account the fact that we were out in the woods in a damn silly sort of place, this doesn't seem unreasonable at all. It was entirely our fault for being there, and we should have been charged accordingly. And we were.

If you get charged six or seven dollars a night for breathing stale air at some Ritz Hotel in a big city, you should be grateful for being charged seven or eight dollars to sleep in a log cabin located in fresher air. No? Yes. But at times I am still tempted to sleep in the car, and the heck with everything.

GOD MADE LITTLE APPLES

A NEWS item informs me that B.C. apples were shipped east at $1 a box, f.o.b. Okanagan, while they were shipped to the coast at $2.25 f.o.b. Somehow or other that annoys me. It makes me want to buy American apples, or Nova Scotian ones. I now have a prejudice against the whole of the Okanagan and all its silly fruit-growers with their one-track minds and two-track price scales. In fact, I am not going to eat apple pie again for some time, principally because I detest apple pie . . . even with cheese on it . . . even with a peach-slice cooked in it (a useful tip) . . . given with marmalade cooked on top of it in the Austrian manner.

BUT WHAT makes me crosser than anything else is that the Okanagan won't make cider. They say there is no demand for cider. They also say that their apples won't make good cider. Both these claims are rubbish. For one thing, people will drink anything (as you can prove by standing around in a liquor store for a few moments). For another thing, you can make excellent cider from any apple that ever hung from a bough. If you sold cider in taverns at a price slightly cheaper than beer, and made the stuff slightly stronger than beer, the apple industry would be off to the races, and fat as a goose and never complaining about anything again. Nor would I ever complain about it again, either. I'd even eat apple pie, provided I had plenty of cider to wash the stuff down with.

STATISTICS GO TO SHOW

DID YOU EVER hear about the two little statistics who went to a show? Well, it all goes to prove something, anyway, though I forget the name of the show. . . . I think it was called "Motherhood Can Be Wonderful in the Rockies While Cowboys Yodel and Guns Bark." But maybe it was called Undiluted Lust. Or Scram. I know it had a title. I do know that. Well, as I was about to remark, statistics go to show that five out of six men are taller than the other one.

GEOGRAPHY

EVER eager to try still another of the world's great array of cheeses, I bought some Tilsit cheese in a large store yesterday. I was very vague about the whereabouts of Tilsit, though I knew a treaty had been signed there once. . . . It sticks in my mind that it was his Napoleon was generous enough to give away part of Prussia that didn't belong to him. When I got my cheese home I looked at the map and saw that Tilsit was once a town in East Prussia and is now in Russia. If that cheese was not made in Tilsit, it is a bit of a fake. If it was, I am buying Russian goods in my ignorance.

Discrepancy

Winnipeg Free Press

THE CONTRIBUTION of each nation to joint defence depends on a variety of factors. It is not possible to take a simple population ratio and from there work out the military manpower which each country should have or be prepared to have in the field.

Canada, for example, has very special problems. This is a huge country with a small population which requires a large proportion of its available working class to keep it in operation than either the United States or the United Kingdom. It has a huge industrial machine which again draws a larger ratio of its working population than the industrial machines of the other countries.

But these and other factors aside, Canadians should be concerned by the growing discrepancy between the military manpower of this country and that already allocated by the United Kingdom and the United States and by the still greater targets which have been set in the U.S. and U.K. than Canada.

'You Have No Alternative'

We have had hot wars, cold wars, and phoney wars. Now we have a hide and seek, or play tag war.

On this side of the battle line, the words Peace, Parallel, Cease Fire, and Stalemate, are tossed around like shuttle in a badminton game. We have this phase of the proceedings all to ourselves, the enemy ignores our vocabulary entirely. He has a positive objective, and if we are self deceived enough to entertain the possibility that he can be influenced to relinquish, or compromise on his objective, we just don't understand Communism and Communists.

"They that take the sword, shall perish by the sword," is a Divine declaration. The possibility of retribution at the hands of other men, is an ever conscious thought in the mind of those who have gained possessions or power by treachery, violence and murder, whether it be a criminal, a Caesar, a political party, or a nation.

Even though they have been entrenched so long that they are accepted at the council table of the world as a sovereign state, the fact that they gained and have maintained power only by the cold-blooded liquidation of thousands or millions of their fellow countrymen is never lost sight of by them.

The sooner this governing factor is recognized by this side, the sooner we will realize that you cannot do business with communism, except on its own terms, and the sooner we will guard ourselves adequately against the worst that could come at any time. With over a million men now engaged, the war is not minor in scope.

Whether we planned it, wanted it, or not, a second war front is now an actual fact. This is just what the Communists want, in case of, or in preparation for, a western front in Europe.

We are being dragged, willy nilly, into an expanding war in Asia, whether we want it or not. When the enemy sets no limit to the forces committed to achieve his fixed objective, you have no alternative but to build up defensive strength to prevent annihilation. This cold logic leaves no room for argument by presidents, politicians or general staff. J. BULLIVANT.

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

REPORTS have been arriving on the Island in a pretty garbled and almost hysterical state, but it now appears definite that Hamish, the janitor's assistant in our old apartment house Back East, has won a two weeks, all-expense honeymoon trip to beautiful Banff and Lake Louise.

Ever since Hamish's pup-tent arrived at our island place, express, collect, we have been living in a state of cold terror. It isn't that I don't like Hamish. It's just that he belongs to a past that is best forgotten. After all, when you are living in the country and are known around the village as quite a hand with a pruning knife and a spade; when you even know several flowers by name and can dig for clams and make your own beer, you don't want to meet anyone who reminds you of the Sinful Days of your earlier life when you lived in a Big City.

"Anyway," I told my wife, "this latest news is almost comforting. I've been looking at a map and between Banff and here there are the Rockies, the Selkirk, the Gold Range and the Coast Range, and also a considerable amount of water. I think we'd better hold on a while before we approach the local Disaster Relief Committee and ask to be evacuated to a smaller, uninhabited island."

From several Eastern correspondents, including a worried railroad public relations man, I have pieced together the events that led up to Hamish's honeymoon. It appears that Col. Skeffington-Smuts (Ret.) was away from his apartment for the week-end and young Timothy Tubbs was using the Colonel's bathtub as a temporary sanctuary for his guppies. (The Tubbs' own bathtub being then occupied by Mr. Tubbs, who had issued an ultimatum to his son that he either find another place for the fish or he would let them loose down the drain.)

Hamish, a kindly soul, had suggested the Colonel's vacant bathtub, and while he and young Timothy were watching the guppies cavort in the tub, the telephone rang and Hamish answered it. "Is that the Skeffington-Smuts home?" a voice asked, and Hamish said, yes.

"May I speak to Mrs. Skeffington-Smuts?"

Mrs. Smuts having been deceased for 25 years, Hamish said, no.

"Well, I presume I'm speaking to Mr. Skeffington-Smuts, this is your Second Honeymoon Man calling. You've heard the Mystery Voice on our radio program. Can you identify it?"

"Jimminy Cricket!" exclaimed Hamish in surprise.

"WHAT WAS THAT, Mr. Skeffington-Smuts? Did you say Jimminy Cricket?"

"Yes," said Hamish.

"Congratulations! You and your wife have won a two-weeks, all-expense second honeymoon to beautiful Banff and Lake Louise. Thank you, thank you, Mr. Skeffington-Smuts!"

When the Colonel came home at the end of the week-end, Hamish met him at the door. "Colonel," he said, "would you like to marry me?"

(Young Timothy, knowing the Colonel's adeptness with a cavalry sword, had loaded his guppies in a bucket and left by the bathroom window.)

Well, as far as I can find out, those two conspirators, Hamish and the Colonel, arranged to borrow some female attire and tried to pass Hamish off as Mrs. Skeffington-Smuts. Of course the hoax didn't work, but as a harassed radio man said: "Let them have the honeymoon. We've got a new Mystery Voice, and what would our sponsor say if he had to take back the prize? You know how he feels when he can't give anything away? This would break his heart."

Westward, Ho!

Climax Nears In Iranian Oil

By JOSEPH ALSOP, from London

THE DESPERATE crisis in the Middle East has entered a new stage in the last days. For the time being at least, the scheme of an airborne landing in Southern Persia, to force serious negotiation of the Iranian oil dispute, has been abandoned. The result is a situation rather like the situation that would be produced if a surgeon put aside all ideas of amputation as a treatment for gangrene.

This curious development occurs at the very moment when the British government has ordered its only parachute brigade to the Middle East. Later on perhaps, if events do not forestall the decision, the idea of sending troops to Persia may be revived. Hope of avoiding a disastrous outcome now rests on the attempt which is being made in Teheran, to bring in a new Persian government. An impression has been made by the fact that the present Prime Minister, the national front leader, Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh, is quite plainly irrational. After many weeks of talking about "negotiation" when negotiation was only too obviously fruitless, the need for a serious and authoritative government to negotiate has also been recognized in London and Washington.

Hence the British representatives in Teheran have been using all their remaining influence with the Shah and other moderate Persians in order to get a new government; and the Americans have been rather limply supporting them. At the moment, a slightly frantic optimism reigns in London about the prospects of this effort. But here again, a shocking price is bound to be paid for the long preceding delay.

The uselessness of negotiation with the existing administration, the need for somebody serious to negotiate with, were just as apparent facts in Teheran eight weeks ago as they are today. At that time, a combined application of Anglo-American influence could have brought in a new government with a minimum of risk and commotion.

SITUATION WORSE

Now, however, the situation has worsened appallingly. Judging from here, a firm suppression of the Persian Parliament, ruthless martial law, and a dictatorial rule by decree constitute the minimum price of any new government which is to enjoy real control in Iran.

It is only too probable, moreover, that the most determined attempt to install a more rational and serious administration at Teheran will touch off a rising by the Communist Tudeh party, the only hard organization in Persia. It is also quite possible that the intervening deterioration of the Persian army will permit such a rising to succeed.

An even stronger invitation to Tudeh success is the expedient now being considered for use if Dr. Mossadegh manages to cling to office, and proceeds with his plan of oil expropriation. In these circumstances, since a landing is now ruled out and the British cannot really submit to the Mossadegh program, economic sanctions are contemplated.

Specifically, it is planned that the British will assert that the oil is still legally theirs, and will intercept any tankers leaving Iran.

This will, of course, cut off the oil revenues on which the Persian government depends. But the Iranian army will then be the first sufferer. And if the only anti-Communist force in the country is thus cut off the payroll, the Tudeh are far more likely to benefit than anyone else. In short it is hard to imagine how this crisis could have been handled to give the Tudeh a better chance. We may get by, but if we do it will be signal proof that providence sometimes tolerates even the worst folly.

VACATION GUIDE

Favorably Located On Vancouver Island — Nanaimo Expands

Some idea of expansion of Nanaimo, Vancouver Island's second largest city, may be obtained from above picture. Until 15 years ago, Nanaimo was coal town. Since then coal has been brushed into background to make way for expanding transportation and industrial development. From both commercial and tourist point of view city holds many advantages through its strategic position on Island.

Nanaimo Has Much to Offer... Beckons Tourists

Nanaimo, 72 miles north of Victoria, is a modern, progressive city... set in a lovely surrounding. The city itself is screened from the choppy waters of Georgia Strait by Gabriola Island... and boasts a fine, healthy climate.

Coal was discovered in Nanaimo in 1849... ever since then, Nanaimo has been a bustling, important centre. The large wooden bastion, sole remaining remnant of Nanaimo's old fort, and now a museum... is but one of the many points of historical interest.

Because of its central location on Vancouver Island, and nearness to Vancouver on the Mainland (36 miles) and because of its excellent harbor... Nanaimo has established itself as a vital distributing centre. The Island Highway passes directly through the centre of the city, affording an excellent view of the city centre and the harbor.

Newcastle Island nearby is a popular resort... and attracts thousands of vacationers annually. At Departure Bay, 3 miles north of Nanaimo, is the Pacific Biological Station of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada. Beyond Nanaimo are the thriving communities of Wellington and Nanos Bay.

Ready For The Times-Anglers Solarium Derby

All set for the big Times-Anglers Solarium Fishing Derby are Red Wells and son Denny (on top). Their 19-footer, powered with a 25 h.p. motor and fully equipped with bunks, galley and all the accoutrements for comfortable fishing, was brought up out of the basement this week after two years of work. Red and Denny were among the first to buy July 22 derby tickets when they went on sale last week.

Views Of Sport

By RED SMITH

NEW YORK—The next sound heard will be the clashing of gears as the National Boxing Association, shifting abruptly into reverse, backs away from its position regarding James J. Carter, a fist fighter.

There is a rule in the industry, faithfully observed in the breach, requiring a champion to defend his title at least once every six months. When Ike Williams, who had kept his lightweight championship out of harm's way since December, 1949, chose a mysterious stranger named Jim Carter as his foil for a title defense, the N.B.A. cried out in horror and loathing.

"Carter?" The N.B.A. hissed. "By long practice, the N.B.A. has learned to hiss without the aid of sibilants." "That bum," the N.B.A. hissed. "Oh, no you don't, Ike Williams. This we do not recognize as a title defense."

Mr. Blinky Palermo, who owns and operates Williams, concurred. "If I thought Carter had a chance," he said reasonably, "do you think I'd let him have the match?"

The N.B.A., which is known to be inflexible, turned out to be right as usual. Williams did not defend his title, and James J. Carter is not a bona fide championship contender. He is the lightweight champion of the world.

Selling Razor Blades And Beer

The smack of leather against pelt, the thud of flesh against canvas, echoed hollowly off the bare slopes of Madison Square Garden's galleries. A fight for the championship of the world was being conducted before 3,594 witnesses for a gross gate of $13,260. In their championship days, Beau Jack and Bob Montgomery scorned to enter this hall with less than $100,000 in the till. This was the famous and popular lightweight division. This was the title for which Benny Leonard and Lew Tindler contended twice before a total 113,204 clients who paid $320,510.

This was video's victory, the triumph of science and advertising. Today, fights sell razor blades and beer instead of tickets. Taking his time, probing for openings in leisurely style, Williams was handling the challenger without difficulty. Maybe he got careless in the fifth round. Anyhow, he got hit. He got beautifully hit by a right hand, a perfect line drive to the chin. He fell backward stiffly, like a tree.

Ike was hurt. Each time he was knocked down, he was hurt, rendered too fuzzy to stay down for the count of nine. He was up at five and Carter, lethargic up to this point, went frantic with eagerness. He got tangled up with Williams, got his right hand free and flailed at the body.

Williams was dragging himself upright again when the bell rang at the count of six. But he had lost the fight; that fact, wasn't apparent immediately, because Ike has been and perhaps still is a better fighter than Carter. Williams won the fight back, but he couldn't keep it.

Bullied through the ropes for a third knockdown in the 10th round, flattened again in the 14th, and slugged after he arose, Ike still had a touch of class after his title was gone. He almost never smiles, but he walked to Carter's corner and tossed his arm across the winner's shoulders, amiably cuffed the new champion's ears.

Honor Among Managers?

In his dressing room Williams was dejected. Said he was sure he had lost the fight on the scales. He said he had weighed 155 pounds when he started training and had to take off 20. Mr. Palermo, thought 149 was his top. They never did get that story straight. Wearily, Ike said sure he wanted a return match. Blinky said there was no contract for a return, but there'd be no trouble about that.

"There is," Blinky said, struck with an original thought, "some honor among managers."

Willie Kethun, Carter's proprietor, said they'd accommodate Williams again and "knock him out sooner next time." Carter said he hadn't been nervous in his inept early rounds, just happened to be a slow starter. He conceded that perhaps he'd let Williams get away from him a couple of times, "but in 15 rounds when you knock him down you don't think you've got him right away. It looks easier from outside the ring."

"Are you excited?" he was asked.

"They say it's the chance of a lifetime," he said. "I'm pretty happy." He sounded as excited as a man saying, "Nice day, isn't it?"

Pries Holds Club Lead As A's Lift Bat Mark

Batting surges by three members of the club were responsible for the 13-point increase in the Athletics club batting average last week.

Marv Diercks, Don Pries and Bill White hit the ball hard last week to boost the team average up to .257. Pries lifted his mark up to a lofty .386, highest for the team and third in the league. Diercks tied 40 points to his average, lifting it to .263, while White rose 15 points to .267. Tri-City is high for the league, hitting at a neat .297 clip. Tacoma Tigers are right behind the leaders with an average one point lower.

EARLY JUMP STANDS BAYS IN GOOD STEAD

Score Second Win; Clubmen Stop Tars

Fears that the Foul Bay squad might run away with the Senior B. Lacrosse League have been given a quenching. The power that drove Bays to a 24 to 3 trampling of Navy in the first game dribbled off after they had piled up an 8 to 1 lead over Jokers at the Memorial Arena last night.

Bays won the game 9 to 3 but Jokers held them scoreless through the third quarter and outscored the league leaders 2 to 1 in the final stanza. In the nightcap, on the same card, Tillucums kept abreast of Foul Bay by posting a 9 to 3 victory over Navy.

Sum and substance of the evening, as far as the fans were concerned, was the build up for next week's fixtures, when Tillucums and Bays, both undefeated to date, meet to decide who is who.

RUGGED ENCOUNTER

Jokers belied their name when they came back scrappily after being outscored to 0 in the first period and 4 to 1 in the second to give Bays a real tussle in the last half.

Cliff Scroggie and Andy Brown proved to be a couple of aces in the Joker deck, Scroggie getting all three goals for the losers and Brown, two assists.

In the meantime, knaves Wilson and Seens were getting majors for fistfights that involved Thompson, Joyce and Green of Bays. A rash of rashness broke out near the end of the game, with Jokers baring in and Foul Bay boring out.

NAVY IMPROVED

The licking which Tars absorbed was a lesser disgrace than is indicated by the 9 to 3 score.

Lack of finish was clearly discernible in only one spot, around the goal; otherwise the Sailors were a match for the Tillucums all the way.

Standings and line-ups follow:

Team	W	L	T	Pts
Foul Bay	2	0	0	6
Tillucums	2	0	0	6
Jokers	0	2	0	0

Next games, Monday: Jokers vs. Navy, 7:30 p.m.; Foul Bay vs. Tillucums, 8 p.m.

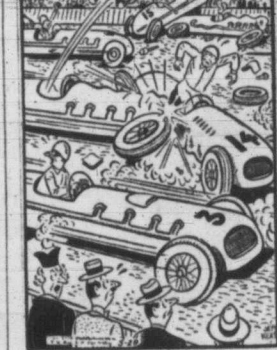

Line-ups:

Foul Bay—A. Thompson, J. Thompson, I. Ower, J. Joyce, Davidson, I. Booth, I. Dwin, Kowalski, Green, Scott, J. Ranson, B. Sanford, J. Newton, J. Zital, J. Jokers—Heatherington, Johnson, Corry, McCouch, Wilson, Seens, S. Galloway, Stevenson, K. Douglas, Brown, Scroggie, J. V. Galloway.

Tillucums—Alkins, Lawrence, J. J. Hamilton, Moffat, Hudson, S. Rennie, Jewell, J. Linn, J. Jones, I. G. Ranson, I. Kerr, I. Reid, I. Booth, Total—4.

Navy—Walker, Bolt, I. Elliott, McMillan, Wilson, Reid, J. Jones, Frisler, Anderson, Lott, McLean, Leonard, I. Clarke, Dawson, Downwell, Labute, Total—1.

UNITED'S MILLIGAN NOT SIGNED WITH VANCOUVER

Reports in the Vancouver press that Wallace Milligan of Victoria-United has been signed to play with Vancouver City in the Connaught Cup Dominion championship soccer series are slightly out of line according to Milligan himself.

The wily center-forward, who starred when Vancouver won the trophy last season, says he has not signed and will not sign unless and until the Vancouver management can show that it will be worth his while.

"And if I do play for Vancouver," concluded Wally, "it will be only for the Connaught Cup."

Milligan also denied rumors that he will be absent from the all-star line-up when Victoria meets the touting Fulham side June 7. He admitted that care of his farm, and the home he is trying to build single-handedly, were making it difficult for him to attend three-weekly practices, but added: "I've been picked, and I'll be there."

A's Lose Another; Drop To Sixth Place

Billy (The Kid) Mills, baseball's newest, youngest and funniest comedian has a repertoire all his own, but always willing to pick up a few new angles, Billy stayed around for the ball game last night after his show was over.

And Billy caught a new act—new to him, but a familiar one hereabouts—as the A's saw another go slipping down the drain to the tune of 7 to 4 for Yakima Bears.

This time the A's used a different method. They spotted Yakima a 3 to 0 lead in the top of the eighth inning, and then pounced back for four runs in the bottom of the inning on home run smashes by Billy Dunn, Marvin Diercks and Don Pries. Then they lost it in the 10th as a great bid for strategic fame by Dick Barrett went awry.

Up until that time Jim Probst and Ted Savarese, a couple of lefties, were engaged in a sweet pitcher's duel.

Probst had given away three doubles and a walk in the eighth but it was nothing like the explosion that greeted Savarese in the Victoria half of the inning.

BOOM, BOOM, BOOM

John Vick led off by drawing a walk. Billy Dunn then slammed a 360-foot drive over the left center field wall. After pinch hitter Dick Bartle had gone out, Marvin Diercks lined another of Savarese's offerings into Pembroke Street. The tumult had hardly died down when Pries cracked yet another screaming liner for the distance. That was all for Savarese.

Yakima came back to knot the count in the top of the ninth. Dick Briskley hit what appeared to be a home run but turned out to be a ground-rule double when the ball lodged in the screen in centre field. He went to third on an infield out and scored on an infield single by Tom O'Laughlin.

STRATEGY BACKFIRES

Then in the top of the 10th, the ailing A's, who now are in sixth place, saw fate turn against them and the new-born strategy of Barrett.

With Barney Serrell on third by virtue of a walk, passed ball and infield out, Barrett decided to walk Gene Gaviglio. He also decided to pass Bill Andring which loaded the bases and set the stage for a double play, which never came off.

Briskley ruined the plot by singling into left field to score both Andring and Gaviglio, and when Andring crossed the plate a few moments later, the fat was in the fire again.

The A's got two men aboard in the bottom of the 10th but Gene Thompson and Lillo Marucci went out in order.

Bill Osborn, who relieved Probst in the ninth, was the loser. The A's play at Tacoma to night, tomorrow and Thursday, returning home to open a four-game series against Wenatchee Chiefs Friday.

Dolly Goldsmith Lifts Golf Trophy

Mrs. Dolly Goldsmith topped the city business women's golf handicap championship at Colwood course Sunday to win the McKenna Trophy in its first year of competition. The cup was presented to Mrs. Goldsmith by the donor, Mrs. Mae McKenna.

Runner-up was Mrs. Vera Clunk, who won medal honors in the qualifying round played April 29.

Darlene Woodburn was winner of the first flight, with Monica Frith, runner-up.

TWO-WAY PERFORMANCE Harper Puts Cabbies Back In League Race

Big Dixie Harper hurled and batted Bluebird Cabs to a sweet 4 to 3 win over league-leading Pitzer & Nex in last night's Senior A Men's softball game at Central Park.

The win moved Cabbies to within one point of the Gasmen and into a tie for second place with Chinese Students.

Harper hit two singles in the game, his second hit in the bottom of the eighth starting the rally that enabled the Cabbies to take the lead for the first time at 4 to 3.

Tim Walker followed Harper and dumped a sacrifice bunt down the third base line. Bill Reynolds, the gasmen's third sacker, hesitated as he looked for a possible play to second and when he turned to throw, the first he was too late for Walker.

TWO-RUN SINGLE Ray Brookbank successfully sacrificed both runners along Charlie Sansbury drove the tying and winning run across the plate as he singled through the box into centre.

In the top of the ninth Harper bore down and retired the side in order to preserve the win.

TOUGH BREAK Pitzer & Nex led 3 to 1 in the top of the sixth and had runners on second and third with two away. Billy Duncan hit a scorching through the hole into centre field for a clean hit that would have brought in both runners, but the play was called back by base-umpire Barney Barnswell when Toad Garnet detected a loose bag at third, and he picked up the hassock just as Harper delivered to the plate.

Barnswell had called time-out before the pitch was made, and on the resumption of play Duncan popped up to the centre fielder behind second base.

Two errors by Ken Gunter in the bottom of the sixth brought in the second run for Cabbies.

Harper allowed only four hits in picking up the win. He struck out four, and issued six walks. Gunter, on the mound for Pitzer & Nex, was nicked for seven hits, but one batter.

Tonight Butler's Aces have a chance to move into a tie for first place as they meet B.C. Forest Products. Game is at 6:30 at Central Park.

Short score follows:

Pitzer & Nex..... R. H. E. Bluebird Cabs..... 3 4 3 Batteries: Gunter and Wiebe; D. Harper and Harris.

At least four British Columbia high school track and field marks will be in dire peril when the big provincial meet opens on the new cinder track, Friday and Saturday.

A certain casualty will be the hop, step and jump mark of 38 feet 8 3/4 inches, which Ted Whan bettered by over two feet in last week's inter-high. Also slated for slaughter is the mile mark of 4:40.2. Don Burgess was officially clocked at 4:38.8 last week and he will be aiming even higher as he hits the stretch with Gerry Downs of Trapp Tech, timed in New Westminster at 4:36.

GIRLS AIM HIGH

The boys' records will not be the only ones to take a beating. Vic High's Trellis Frame, who has sprinted the 60-yard dash in 7.4 seconds, will be battling Gerry Bemister of Vancouver (7.2) for the honor of besting the provincial time of 7.5.

Mimi Large, of Kitsilano High, served notice at Vancouver a few days ago that she will push the girls' discuss throw at least another 20 feet. Minie's toss of 108 feet 9 inches dwarfs the present high school record of 86 feet 11 1/2 inches.

20 SCHOOLS IN

Vic High's Laurie Wallace, charged with organizing the meet, reported 20 teams in the 30 schools expected to compete.

Among the mainland challengers who will test the best athletes in Victoria's high schools will be 16-year-old rookie Harry Nelson, Duke of Connaught, who is a top-notch sprinter.

Accompanying Gerry Downs from New Westminster will be Ken Sawwell, who has a 45-foot shot put and an 118-foot discus throw behind him.

Langley's Stafford, sprinting flash who has been clocked at 10.4 in the 100-yard event, will compete with runners from Creston, Kelowna, Maple Ridge, Armstrong, Woodbridge, Duncan, Nanaimo and several Vancouver schools yet to be heard from.

Outstanding pole vaulter is Penitence's Jerry Kenyon, present record holder. The event had been discontinued at Victoria school meets and the inter-high, because of lack of interest, but several local schools have indicated they will enter.

Events are: Boys, 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile, three miles, high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot put (12 lbs.), discus (senior), hop, step and jump, Girls, 60 yards, 100 yards, broad jump, high jump, discus (women's).

Also relays for boys and girls. Boys, 4-man team (2 x 110 yards, 1 x 220 yards, 1 x 440 yards). Girls, 4-girl team (4 x 110 yards).

OPERATION HELPED

Maxim contends that what once was regarded as his delicate right leg was changed to a devastating right when bone chips were removed from his right elbow during army service. His manager, Jack Kearns, predicts a lively brawl from the opening gong.

In 1942 Charles outpointed Maxim twice. On Feb. 28, 1949, Ez took a split 15-round decision from Maxim at Cincinnati—an outcome that Kearns has always violently questioned.

Both Charles and Maxim have come through two months of rigorous training without so much as a nose bleed and are in prime shape.

Minn Muffles Tillicum Bats

Ted Minn tucked away an 11 to 6 victory for Esquimalt in the Senior B Men's Softball League last night as he handcuffed Tillicums at Bullen Park.

Bill Walker and Gordie Hayward hit sound-trippers for the Dockers, and Doug Corlette clipped Minn for the loser's only homer of the game.

Gorge Vale Title

An 11-stroke handicap wasn't sufficient to hold John Merriman off the Gorge Vale handicap championship. The young shot-maker spotted his opponent, Laurie Greenwood, that many strokes and went on to win 3 and 1 Sunday.

Vic High's modern crop of athletes will commemorate the 75th anniversary of their alma mater this week-end in a manner that would gladden the hearts of other generations of Vic High track and field men—by breaking records.

Their athletic instructors say they can do it, Bruce Humber says they can do it, and the record says they can do it.

At least four British Columbia high school track and field marks will be in dire peril when the big provincial meet opens on the new cinder track, Friday and Saturday.

A certain casualty will be the hop, step and jump mark of 38 feet 8 3/4 inches, which Ted Whan bettered by over two feet in last week's inter-high. Also slated for slaughter is the mile mark of 4:40.2. Don Burgess was officially clocked at 4:38.8 last week and he will be aiming even higher as he hits the stretch with Gerry Downs of Trapp Tech, timed in New Westminster at 4:36.

The boys' records will not be the only ones to take a beating. Vic High's Trellis Frame, who has sprinted the 60-yard dash in 7.4 seconds, will be battling Gerry Bemister of Vancouver (7.2) for the honor of besting the provincial time of 7.5.

Mimi Large, of Kitsilano High, served notice at Vancouver a few days ago that she will push the girls' discuss throw at least another 20 feet. Minie's toss of 108 feet 9 inches dwarfs the present high school record of 86 feet 11 1/2 inches.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor.

It was like any other Saturday afternoon. The sun was high in the heavens while down below on the field the groundsmen were readying the field for play. Over in the bullpen, pitcher Ron Smith of the Athletics threw leisurely to a battery-mate. Minds of those present went back to another Saturday afternoon just three weeks past when a similar scene was being enacted. That was the day that the afternoon went on into evening before Smith lifted his tired arm for the final time and walked off the hill a 1-to-0 loser in 23 pulsating innings.

But this was another day, one which may eventually turn out to be a momentous one in the history of the 1951 Athletics.

As the game got under way the boys in press row were mulling over the question: "Just how much life had been taken out of Smith's arm by the 23-inning game." They didn't have too long to wait. Smith stuck around for six innings and then left—not because of his arm, although it was weakening, but because he aggravated a groin injury and was through for the day.

All wasn't lost when lefty Bill Paine was waved in from left field to take over when Smith had left off. That Paine wasn't sufficiently warmed up mattered little. This was an old complaint among the scribes.

"Barrett," one said, "never has a pitcher ready."

Well, Paine stuck around, though it must have been as painful for him as it was for those who had paid to see the carnage. What stuff he had apparently had been left in the bullpen and when the end finally came one observer quipped: "Well, that's the end, thank goodness; and the end of Paine, too."

Paine's only previous fling at glory had come in Vancouver when he was a party to the 22-to-7 incarceration suffered by the A's. Apart from that display he reputedly once was a member of Billy Rose's Aquacade—a swimming troupe of renown, having no connection whatsoever with baseball.

Who Made The Oversight?

Paine was also the fellow picked by Barrett and general manager Reg. Patterson to remain with the club over the protests of John Vick and Gene Gaviglio. Vick since had been resigned by the A's while Gaviglio had been taking great delight in hammering the southpaw and other Victoria pitchers lustily while attired in a Yakima uniform.

Someone had made a mistake in the disposal of players at the W.I.L. cut-down date, and Paine was one of those who had been missed. He just hasn't come around.

Either that or Barrett and Patterson had failed to judge the potential of their mound staff correctly.

Then there's the question of Barrett's handling of pitchers. This aspect of the fledgling mentor's capabilities has cropped up before but always Barrett had the answer, "I'm working my pitchers according to plan."

Barrett has been in baseball 27 years; he's a member of the Pacific Coast League's "Hall of Fame," and he won that honor as pitcher. He should know something about pitchers. But what Dick doesn't know or at least he hasn't professed to know by his handling of pitchers is that the fans—those who pay their 90 cents—want a run for their money.

These fans want to see a pitcher at least PREPARED to work in the bullpen in case of an emergency, and Barrett so far hasn't shown any tendencies to co-operate in this regard. As a matter of fact, his relief men have been used sparingly and are hardly earning their keep.

The letter we received in the mail bears out the fans' opinion and is repeated here for Mr. Barrett's edification and also to illustrate the point which we have in mind.

It is an open letter to Barrett and comes from a fan who likes her baseball. It follows in part:

A Baseball Fan Speaks Up

"We are happy to have you as coach and manager of our ball team, and congratulations for a fine job you did in winning a recent game. But why, oh why, do you leave your pitcher in the game until the cause is lost. I know it's easy to criticize from the sidelines, but pulling the pitcher at the right moment certainly seems to pay off."

"So please, Kewp, let's try some new tactics and save some of these games for our pitchers, instead of making them go the route and ending up with a loss."

"But remember, too, that all the fans are not as fanatical as this family and many are getting discouraged. You just have to listen to the crowd going out after a game."

"So there you have it, Dick, from a fan. This town hasn't had a winner, or even a contender, ever, and it's getting a little hungry."

It isn't that the A's are a poor ball club. Frankly, we don't think they're as bad as their record, but we said at the start of the season and we'll say it again, what is needed is another infielder and quickly, too. Also a little less reluctance in pulling the pitcher. At least it's worth a try.

The worst the A's can do is lose. And they have been doing pretty well at that lately with a pitching staff which you yourself said was "the equal of anything in the league."

Saturday was the turning point, Dick, either for better or worse. You could see it in the players and you could feel it in the remarks of the fans.

This little old town of ours likes its baseball, but it likes a fight for its money, win, lose or draw.

By the way, what ever became of pitcher John Tierney?

SWIFTEST FIELD EVER SET FOR INDIANAPOLIS GRIND

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Faster engines and sleeker automobiles, plus the lure of $200,000 in prizes, produced the swiftest of all fields for the 500-mile race tomorrow at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Speediest of the 33 drivers to qualify, Walt Faulkner of Long Beach, Calif., did his 10-mile qualifying test at 136.872 miles an hour, and the slowest, Bill Mackey of Indianapolis, did 131.473. Twenty of the cars that qualified in 1950 were slower than that.

The qualifying average was 133.570, compared to 131.045 in 1950.

If there are any favorites in this speed-saturated field they are Chet Miller and Duke Nalon. Others highly regarded are Johnny Parsons the 1950 winner; Mauri Rose, twice a winner and holder of an additional co-championship, and, of course, the tiny Faulkner.

ROCK LINE-UP CHANGED

Gilmore Named Nanaimo Coach

Nanaimo's new lacrosse coach won't be Eddie Powers.

Rumors that the erstwhile Intercity Lacrosse League referee might take over at the helm of the Native Sons were dispelled last night with the appointment of Ed Gilmore of Duncan to replace Lloyd Steele as mentor of the up-island squad.

The appointment was made at a meeting following the resignation of Steele, who has been transferred to the mainland by his firm. Gilmore is a former coach of the Richmond Farmers of Vancouver.

Queried about Powers, one of the officials of the Nanaimo club told the Times yesterday that he had not been considered for the post. "We feel he was the best referee in the league," the Nanaimo man said, "but we agree with the action of the executive in using the referees in rotation."

Powers quit his job as arbiter because the commission "reneged on an agreement to let me work at least four games a week." He had expressed his willingness to consider an offer from Nanaimo, either as coach or player.

Two Victorians, Vic Sage and Al Denoni, worked out with the Sons at a practice preceding the executive meeting last night. Both may see action here tomorrow in the first Nanaimo appearance at the Memorial Arena. Sage has been playing with Jokers of the Victoria senior B league.

Sons see Wednesday's and Saturday's games with Victoria's Shamrocks as two of the most important contests in the schedule. They were edged 12 to 10 by the Rocks in the first game of the season and have since chalked up wins over North Shore and Vancouver Combines. A victory over Victoria, they reason, should scotch any further doubt as to their senior A calibre.

BOOTH TO PLAY

Arnold Ferguson's squad will be juggled again for tomorrow's contest.

Fred Ranson will rest his injured shoulder and Eddie Popham will be back in the line-up centering Bob Monaghan and Art Green. Whitely Severson is scheduled to move to rover with the line and Darrell Popham will partner Fergie on defence.

Larry Booth makes his first appearance of the season with the Irish, playing centre with Norm Baker and Archie Browning. Tom Druce is slated for the rover spot and the defence will be Len Scott and Red McMillan.

Unwilling to concede that a 12 to 10 score indicated the relative ability of the two teams, Shamrock manager Ralph Baker nevertheless admitted today that "we won't be taking anything for granted. Look what they did to the Combines."

The point was well made. The Sons have licked the Combines, the Shamrocks haven't.

INDIANS TRY AGAIN

Meanwhile, the hapless North Shore Indians will take on Vancouver Combines at Kerrisdale Arena tonight.

A win for the Redskins would do much for their morale, which has sunk to the league basement along with their win record. A victory for Combines on the other hand, would give the Vancouverites exclusive possession of first-place again.

The game also gives Combines' Jimmy Anderson an opportunity to enlarge his present four-point lead over Archie Browning in the scoring columns.

White Sox Take Lead As Yanks Bow To Bosox

For the first time in 30 years, Chicago's White Sox are able to look down upon the entire American League—and that includes the world champion New-York Yankees.

A momentous 4 to 2 homecoming victory over the St. Louis Browns last night, before 23,138 whooping fans, zoomed the pale horse to the top. It climaxed a spectacular 12-game winning streak, all but one on the road.

Naturally, the Sox needed outside assistance. And they got it when the Red Sox nosed out the Yankees 3 to 2 in Boston.

Not since 1920 have the White Sox enjoyed—all by their lonesome—such a lofty perch as late as Decoration Day. Victorious in 18 of their last 20 games, the Sox today hold a 24-percentage point bulge over the Yankees—727 to 703. The two teams actually are even in games won and lost. The Yankees, however, have participated in four more games and have played only 500 ball in those contests.

CASTOFF COMES THROUGH

For the fifth straight day manager Paul Richards watched another castoff come through for him with a dazzling pitching performance. Last night it was Saul Rogovin, who came from the Detroit Tigers a little more than a week ago.

Rogovin threw a two-hitter at the Browns as his mates clubbed loser Duane Pilette for eight of their nine hits and all their runs in five innings. It was Rogovin's second start and his first victory for the White Sox.

Mel Farnell, Red Sox ace southpaw, surrendered nine Yankee hits but was tough in the pinches to register his fifth victory, two of them over the Yankees.

Bobby Doerr's sixth home run of the season, with a mate aboard in the second inning, was the payoff wallop. The win extended the Red Sox string to eight in a row.

FELLER ON BEAM

Reasonably ripe Robert Feller spun himself another shut-out, his second in succession, as Cleveland whipped the Tigers in Detroit, 9 to 0. The 32-year-old right-hander, who shut out Washington with two hits in his last appearance, yielded six hits and struck out three. It was his sixth victory against a lone de-

Sigler Lauds Northwest

The Canadian northwest and Alaska would some day be one of the most prosperous areas in North America, according to Kim Sigler, governor of Michigan in 1947, who left for Seattle Monday following a short visit to Victoria.

Mr. Sigler, who stopped over here following a visit to Alaska, said that business was booming at Anchorage, Fairbanks, and in the Yukon. "I wish people knew a little more about the northwest," he added. "It has enormous possibilities, particularly the area lying north of Edmonton, Alta."

Mr. Sigler, who was appointed in 1943 special prosecutor of the Carr-Sigler Grand Jury to investigate state graft in the Michigan State government, said he was not quite sure whether he would again take an active part in politics.

"There is a senator's seat vacant," he said. "I may run for that. I haven't made up my mind yet."

"Where did you say you got this?" Jervis asked.

"In New Westminster, sir. I was serving in the Revenue boat."

"You bought it?"

"Yes, sir."

"From whom?"

Over the sailor's face a look of alarm had spread. "I didn't—I didn't pinch it, sir. Honest I didn't."

"I wasn't suggesting that. Who sold it to you?"

"Didn't ask his name, sir. A miner."

"From the Cariboo?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know what part of the Cariboo?"

"No, sir."

The full significance of this discovery began to come home, even as he looked down into the sailor's face.

"Do you know how the miner came by it?"

The man shook his head. A wave of frightening impotence swept over Jervis.

"Are you... sure you don't know any more about it than that?"

The sailor was trying hard to recall the sale. "So far as I can recall, sir, the man was a Yankee—bound home over the Whatcom Trail, I think he said."

"But... but, think, man, how did he get this brooch?"

"Said he picked it up on the way down from Barkerville—in a saloon. Honest, sir, I—I don't know no more about it than that, sir."

So Letty had, at any rate, reached the Cariboo! His mind was racing. He tried to face the question that formed itself around the cameo as he looked.

Never would she have voluntarily parted with that brooch. Of that he was as certain as that he held it in the palm of his hand at this moment. What had happened to her... had she been robbed? Or had something infinitely more tragic happened?

His mind refused to accept the possibility. And with the unbelief came a new and sharpening resolve. He would get there and find out for himself. He would, if it took every last ounce of his strength and ingenuity, get out of this place and seek her...

He heard himself asking the sailor, in a flat and mechanical way. "How much did you pay for this?"

"The man hesitated."

"For sentimental reasons I'd like to buy it back from you."

The sailor had reddened, but a common honesty came up into his mouth. "Half a crown, sir."

Jervis felt in his pocket and produced the necessary coin. "You'll sell it back?"

"Yes, sir."

The money changed hands. Jervis held the cameo brooch now with the relief of possession. He put it in his pocket and turned away. Soon, now, pray God, he would find the answer for himself.

"No, sir."

The dark-haired young man in the naval officer's uniform came into the room briskly. The prison clerk blinked up from the prisoners' record book he was compiling, and noticed the stripes of a lieutenant-commander. He got off his stool and came forward with punctilious enquiry. The officer gave the impression of being in a hurry. "I understand that the Commissioner of Police is away in Nanaimo?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then I'd like to see the new superintendent."

"Certainly, sir. And the name?"

"Vinson. Lieutenant-Commander Vinson."

"Will you come this way, sir?"

The superintendent's free now. As he saw the nature of his visitor, the new superintendent, a tall and angular man, came round the corner of his desk.

"Good morning, sir," he said. "What can I do for you?"

"You have in custody a Lieutenant Jervis Braid, of the Avenger."

"Yes, sir."

The young man took from his pocket a folded paper. He passed it to the superintendent.

"I've authority to conduct him to the naval hospital for a general medical examination called for in new orders."

The superintendent read the confirmatory letter. It bore the required naval seal. It seemed to be in order. But the procedure...

"Excuse me, sir—but isn't it customary for the medical officer to visit the prison himself in these circumstances?"

The superintendent was anxious to avoid any complications with the navy.

"I merely ask for information," he explained. "I am new in Victoria."

The stranger smiled. "The medical officer is conducting a special examination of all officers on the station. It was considered advisable to include Lieutenant Braid. You'll notify the usual prison doctor, of course? We must avoid any confusion."

"Naturally."

"I will act as Lieutenant Braid's escort myself—and I will return him personally to you in about two hours' time."

"Very good, sir. I'll get the jailor to bring him here."

Back in those great days when Phil Willis, Jim Adamson and Elliott Player were leading Oak Bay High rugby teams to more victories than the school's size warranted, we of Oak Bay adopted a pretty condescending attitude towards Victoria High. In Thomson Cup play—and that was the only way to judge a school's athletic prowess—we did very well by ourselves against the black and gold hordes from Fernwood Rd.

Not that we were snobbish. Scarcely that. Ours was more a thinly veiled admission of our superiority. In fact, when Vic High made a smart play, we'd even applaud. But politely. And when their half-back, "Red" Smith, was dumped on that part of him were he was growing a boil, we'd give lip service at least to sympathy. That wouldn't stop our boys from dumping him in the same place next time he came through.

WHEN WE LEFT Oak Bay High and began to shorten up the pronunciation of the letter "a," we were a little surprised to note that Vic High was turning out some pretty fair guys, too. Years later, when we'd buried sectionalism, we began to develop friendly sentiments for the Island's biggest school.

You'll never get an Oak Bay High old boy to place his alma mater second to any in British Columbia, or elsewhere. You'll find, though, a fairly wholesome regard in him for the big neighbor in the city. As long as the young crop at Cranmore Road can take a fall, or two out of Victoria on the rugby field, or while the girls can win grass hockey games, a very healthy conceit will persist.

Still, if the old boy happens to belong to an earlier generation, he'll be willing to concede that some fine men have made Victoria High an institution of pride, too. The older crowd will recall the scholarly and gentlemanly figures of early days and remark, too, on the way in which those traditions have been maintained.

THEY MAY THINK of Dr. Paul, whose life in British Columbia was for years the synonym of educational advance. They'll recollect him as a scholar of outstanding distinction, and place that characteristic in the background against which his affectionate and human personality shone.

They may speak of Dr. S. J. Willis and the kindly manner he lent to his administration of educational affairs—an example of courtesy which did not impinge on efficiency. They'll talk, too, of Dr. Ira Dilworth—"Butch"—to the boys of his earlier classes—whose brilliance and critical faculties have won international renown.

And when they come down to the present, they'll be inclined to forget that Harry Smith is a former Shakespearean scholar of McGill, and think of him more in the light of an example in citizenship—a man so forthrightly honest that you'd want your children to be under him or they might absorb his attitude to life.

IF, ON THE OTHER hand, you're a Victoria High old boy, or old girl, there may be other teachers you'd remember more clearly. Their personalities may be etched on your mind in some association of past glories or incidents that seemed big at the time. You might run back to the days of "Buck" Yeo, or even before him, to the time when Vic High was laying the foundation for basketball brilliance.

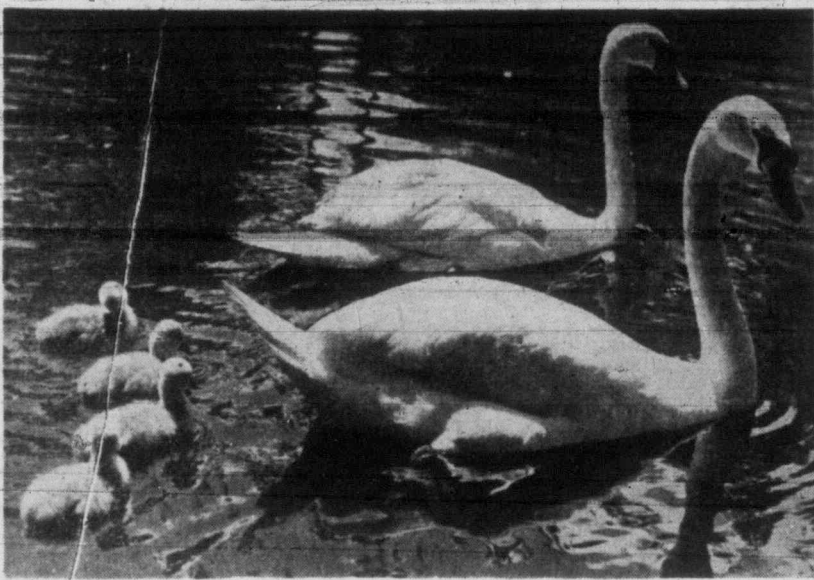

You might think of some of the institution's classical scholars, who at least struck a match for you, even if they didn't light a torch to illumine your way back through the obscurity of time.

Old names will regain familiarity this week as the school commemorates its 75th anniversary—old names, and old problems, old triumphs and old disappointments. And running through them, the strong warp on which the fabric of the school's tradition has been woven, are the teachers who have given years of selfless service, who have tried to build better Victorians through their efforts, and who have found pride in the young men and women who have passed through their hands.

EXCEPT POSSIBLY to the oldest of our living pioneers, there can be no remembrance of the first High School in British Columbia in its small Yates Street quarters. Relatively few will recall the institution when it was housed in the present Central Junior High. Most of the recollections will surround the present building, not old yet, but wearing its years with maturity and honor.

Through its corridors have flowed much of the living stream that is Victoria. On its walls are the rolls of those who served Canada in two wars, counting life not too precious to spend quickly in defence of principles they learned, in part at least, in its classrooms and on its campus.

They, too, will be remembered as Victoria High School looks back over its shoulder this week, and turns again to the days ahead strengthened by that look.

Would Institute Plan To Give Needy Food

Mrs. Barbara Green, 3438 Cook Street, mailed formal application today to the City Council finance committee for permission to use a stall in the public market for the distribution of surplus food to the city's needy.

Her plan is to have public-spirited gardeners and farmers bring surplus foodstuffs to the stall one day a month. She will then distribute the food to those with a legitimate need, and will undertake to deliver the remainder to suffering families at her own expense.

If the plan is found workable and becomes too big for one person to handle she may approach organizations for their support, she said. In that case other accommodation will be found so as not to inconvenience the market staff.

Mrs. Green plans to start the booth operating early next month when first crops mature.

Application for the vote was made Saturday by Local 1163 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers' Union, which is seeking a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase and union shop conditions from 30 local decorating firms, represented by the Victoria Master Painters Association.

There has been some immigration of Poles mainly, in the past two years and it is suggested now more miners will be brought from various sections of Europe to help meet a growing labor shortage in the ore industry of B.C. caused by the improved price position in base metals.

It is estimated there will be a need for more than 1,000 miners in the near future.

Some will be required to work mines being opened up in the Kootenays, but the bulk will be needed for tunnel work in the huge hydro power project of the Aluminum Company of Canada at Kemano.

It has been reported over 600 hard-rock miners will be employed by Alcan in the drilling of a 10-mile 36-foot diameter tunnel through a mountain at the head of Kemano Valley, and in other smaller projects.

Close to 100 more miners will be required for a tunneling job at the B.C. Electric Company power project at Jones Lake.

Blame Dim Lights For Death Mishap

Jury Makes Recommendation In Ruling Low Crash Accidental

A rider recommending that motorcycles have lights that will give standard efficiency at all speeds, accompanied a verdict of accidental death by a coroner's jury today probing the circumstances of the death of war veteran Thomas H. C. Lowe, 54, of 4312 Columbia Drive, early Saturday on Shelbourne Street near McRae Avenue.

Lowe died in Jubilee Hospital after the motorcycle he was riding was in collision with a car driven by Kenneth D. H. Clarke, 202 Edward Street. Evidence was that Lowe, a two-war veteran, suffered a compound fracture of the skull.

Evidence brought out was that the motorcycle headlight was extremely dim at the time. It is felt by a magistrate, the speed of the machine determining amount of light.

Clarke said he pulled out to pass a bus and did not see the motorcycle until it was only about three car lengths in front of him coming straight for him. He said he pulled hard to the right to try to avoid the collision.

A glancing blow resulted, the motorcycle carrying on to wind up in the ditch 126 feet farther on, the car carrying on for 136 feet to stop in front of the bus.

SAW DULL LIGHT
Gordon Poulson, V.I. Coach Lines driver, said he saw a dull light coming toward him and shortly after, the car swung out to pass him.

Poulson recalled he said aloud at the time: "He's not going to make it" and swung over to give more room until his right wheels were in the ditch.

The impact came about half way along the length of the bus. Clarke said he swung over with the bus.

John Ellard, passenger in the bus, said he was sitting in the right front seat and had a clear view ahead. He testified he did not see the motorcycle light. James Maxwell testified he was parked at McRae Avenue, facing east, about 100 feet from the collision scene, and did not see or hear the motorcycle pass in front of him.

Constable Robert Coleman of Saanich police said a deposit of earth showed the impact had occurred in the centre of the 21-foot paved road. He said there were no skid marks.

'Snooks' Creator, Fanny Brice, Dies
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedienne Fanny Brice died at 2:15 p.m. E.D.T. today, five days after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage.

Miss Brice, born Fannie Borach on New York's East Side, was 59. The end came a few hours after Miss Brice, the "Baby Snooks" of radio, took a turn for the worse Monday night at hospital. She had been in a coma and under an oxygen tent most of the time since suffering the hemorrhage at her home last Thursday.

Miss Brice's two children, William Brice and Frances Stark, were at her bedside when she died.

Two doctors who wasted no time in coming to the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Ophthalmological Society at the Empress Hotel were Dr. Joel Pressman and Dr. John Lordan, who flew their own Beechcraft Bonanzas from Beverly Hills, Calif.

Dr. Claude Mumma flew with Dr. Pressman, and Mrs. Lordan had the right-hand seat in her husband's ship.

Another party who mixed business and pleasure were Dr. and Mrs. Carl D. F. Jensen and Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Bell, Oakland, who sailed from Seattle in Dr. Jensen's cruiser.

INSURANCE MACHINES AT AIRPORTS IN PROVINCE

An amendment to the B.C. Insurance Act was proclaimed today allowing installation of insurance policy "slot machines" at airports.

Persons traveling by air transport will be able to insure themselves for the flight with a minimum of delay. Traveler has only to fill out a form on the machine and insert coins in a slot to the amount of the premium of the policy desired.

It is held unlikely the machines will be used at Patricia Bay airport, but visitors to Vancouver airport at Sea Island probably will have the new insurance facilities.

Reception At Governor's For Doctors

Doctors attending the annual meeting of Pacific Coast Ophthalmological Society at the Empress Hotel closed a full day of instruction courses today with a reception at Government House. A dinner dance will be held tonight at the Empress.

Among the leading papers to be given tomorrow and Thursday when general sessions resume will be "Use of Vitamin A in Deafness" by Dr. Shirley H. Baron, San Francisco, and "Local Use of Cortisone in Treatment of Scleritis" by Dr. James Powell, Stockton, Calif.

Altogether, 13 papers will be read and discussed during the two days.

Dr. Gordon C. Large of Vancouver, with a 10-pounder, was "high boat" at Brentwood Bay Monday afternoon when about 40 doctors braved a high wind to fish for salmon.

Another party played golf at Victoria Golf Club, while others shopped and toured the city.

Cyclist Injured

Knocked unconscious by a fall from her bicycle, Joan Kelter, 15, of 891 Jasmine Avenue, was treated at Jubilee Hospital this morning and then taken home by her father.

Saanich police officers Ed Anderson and Walter Mycock said her bicycle skidded on loose gravel on Burnside Road south of the Interurban Track, throwing her off and into a ditch. A passing motorist found Joan unconscious and called the police.

Navy Chaplain Conducts Ceremony At Wright-De Gruchy Wedding

Chaplain Ivan Edwards, R.C.N., heard nuptial vows spoken by his cousin, Agnes Eleanor Lois Wright, when she became the bride of Francis C. De Gruchy in a ceremony Saturday evening in Victoria West United Church. Rev. S. V. H. Redman assisted.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wright, 1490 Dallas Road, and the groom is the son of Mrs. W. De Gruchy, 1703 Albert Street, and the late Mr. De Gruchy.

Traditional wedding music was played by Fred Wright, the bride's brother.

A pearl necklace, gift to the bride's mother on her wedding day, and pearl earrings, were chosen by the bride to wear with her gown of white lace, fashioned with tiered skirt of net over shimmering white satin. A beaded coronet held her fingertip veil of illusion net.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. R. Martindale, who wore pink lame jacket with her gown of turquoise net over taffeta. Carnations in tones of pink were worn in her hair and arranged in the bouquet she carried.

A toe-touching gown of posy pink taffeta was worn by petite flower girl Lynn Edwards. She carried a basket bouquet of pink and white flowers.

Best man was Don Dixon, and ushers, Arthur Wright and Lionel Wright, brothers of the bride, Ted Bradley and Richard Creech.

Capt. (E) T. H. Evans, R.C.N. (ret'd.) proposed the toast to the bride at a reception held at the Olde England Inn, where Mrs. Wright and Mrs. De Gruchy assisted the newlyweds in receiving guests. The table was set with bowls of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley, and three-tier cake topped with Sweetheart roses.

Crescent Lake, Washington, and later Seattle are honeymoon plans of the bridal couple. For traveling the bride donned a tailleur of butterfly grey, white and grey straw hat with red and white flower trim, red shoes and companion bag. Her corsage bouquet was of Rapture roses.

Minister's Mother Finds Traveling On Mission Boat Opens Many New Doors

By DAWN VAN NORMAN

"It's a whole new life," says Mrs. Helen E. McColl, who, for the past two years, has accompanied her son, Rev. R. H. McColl, B.A., B.D., on the United Church mission boat, Thomas Crosby IV, visiting 60 ports of call on the coast of British Columbia from Smith's Inlet as far north as Kitamaat.

Mrs. McColl lived in this city for seven years before her new venture and returned recently for a short visit with Mrs. E. R. Bewell, Queenswood.

She is now in Seattle from where she will go to Vancouver to rejoin her son, then on to their home port, Ocean Falls, to resume work.

TEA AFLOAT

"I have my household duties on my floating home," she tells you. "Sometimes I even get a chance to entertain."

"Very often when we stop at an isolated settlement on the coast or a lighthouse, I invite the ladies aboard and we have a tea party. They dress up in their best clothes and the enjoyment they get out of the party is beyond all imagination."

"Don't think I am the only one to entertain," she added. "When my son and I go ashore we are treated royally. The natives and whites alike bring out their very best for us."

The Thomas Crosby is the only mission boat in the localities visited. Ports of call include six Indian villages, five lighthouses, several canneries, and logging camps. Calls are also made on many old folk who live alone or in pairs in clearings. Very often they are old-age pensioners who cannot afford to live in the communities.

"In one case we called on an old man living alone up the coast," she explained. "We stopped by at Christmas time to drop off food hampers for him."

Shortly after this he was iced in and did not have his supplies replenished until March 10. Without the hampers he would have died of starvation.

"So you can see that a mission boat has many duties," Mrs. McColl tells of a call she makes to Hartley Bay to visit an old Indian lady who has been paralyzed with arthritis for 25 years.

"She is only able to move her muscles from the neck up but she always has a broad smile and cheery word to greet us."

"Most of the women I meet simply hug the life out of me," Mrs. McColl explains with a chuckle. "They are so thrilled to see another woman—someone they can confide in and tell their troubles."

VISITS LIGHTHOUSES

"One call I always love is to Pointer Island lighthouse where the MacDonalds live all by themselves. Mrs. MacDonald is an accordion player and her husband plays the violin."

"My son seats himself at the portable organ we have aboard and we all take part in a glorious revival meeting."

"Mrs. MacDonald is a remarkable woman," she continued. "She makes the best of everything. Raising budgie birds is her main activity and her garden, too, takes a lot of time."

A visit to the Campbells on Ivory Island, near Millbank Sound, is another highlight for Mrs. McColl who tells you that Mrs. Campbell has not been off the island for six years. But her days are fully occupied by raising goats, rabbits, chickens, and in her garden.

"One of our treats when we call there is to have ice cream made from goat's milk," she says.

The Thomas Crosby fulfills many commissions for the isolated people along the coast.

LOOKS FOR KITTEN

"Not long ago we were on the search for a kitten," Mrs. McColl reminisced. "It had to be a male kitten for the Dane who wanted it was a bachelor, and a woman-hater in the bargain. He'd lost his cat—a tom—in an accident, and he wanted another."

The ship also carries films aboard from the National Film Board, and the McColls—mother and son—put on moving picture shows for the people they visit.

"It would gladden your heart," Mrs. McColl said, "to see how they love these shows."

"Well, I'm off again," she concluded, "and I don't suppose I will see Victoria until next May when we will be down again for refitting and for my son to attend the church conference."

A twinkle of amusement came into her eyes as she added: "You know, when I'm climbing over rocky beaches, sinking up to my knees in mud, or dropping off at isolated islands, I can hardly believe it is me. The thought often occurs to me, 'who would have believed it!'"

THE BRIDE'S MOTHER WORE

Last Saturday the wedding of Miss O. Gladys took place. She married Wilf Bucket. The service was conducted by the Reverend and the Bride's mother (who wore brown accessories). The choir sat as one man (which in fact it was).

Immediately after the service the bride took the groom to the tattooist for a quaint little ceremony, in which he wrote "Married To Olive" on his chest. Wilf is a sailor.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother (who wore brown accessories). The bride wore a quaint bouquet of buttercups. The pages looked sweet as they stood in the corridor & held the train. The little dears somehow refrained from shooting craps during the service. At the reception at the home of the bride's mother (who wore brown accessories) the guests ood & ached over the lovely gifts, which included 4 toaster ovens & Tri-Light with a crooked stand from HUMBER'S. There were an awful lot of guests & if they had been laid out end to end, we shouldn't be in the least surprised. There was a cottage piano in the loving room, given to the happy couple by a woman with carved mahogany legs. A rather unusual gift was a red umbrella given by a woman with whalebone ribs. The happy pair intend living in a cozy two-room suite, so suitable for people with sliding doors. The bath is up-to-date & on the bus line. The bridegroom & best man both wore morning dress but were able to get them back to the shop before it closed. The bride's mother wore a brown two piece (top & bottom) with brown accessories. Another very acceptable gift was a small spring-filled chair from HUMBER'S WAREHOUSE. The spring was in the bottom left hand corner of the chair. The bride's going away outfit was a striking creation of egg colored sackcloth, & she wore a string of glittering glass beads, and had the buttercups on her shoulder.

Wilf had on pink colored suspenders. It was reported that one pretty girl who did not receive an invitation was rendered prostrate. Several people who did receive invitations were also rendered prostrate. The mother wishes to state that she has some brown accessories for sale.

Who not only outfit two-way views with sliding doors, but keep right up to date on making things easier in the home. For instance HUMBER'S have just introduced a carpet raised slightly from the floor on wooden rollers. This is very useful, since it means that dust can be swept under the rug without making unsightly lumps. The carpet can be moved from room to room, depending on where there is the most dust. Care should be taken however, because when walking over this carpet it is liable to move suddenly, and so the flat on his sliding door.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

When the annual Greater New York tournament begins tomorrow in New York City it will adopt a new feature that has proved popular in bridge tournaments throughout the country. There will be one pair event for those with 50 or more national master points and another pair event for those with less. This type of tournament pleases everybody by keeping the crocodiles away from the gazelles.

In last year's Greater New York the pair championship was won by Jules Tilles and Robert Abeles, well-known Bronx experts. One of the hands that helped them win is shown today. South's opening bid of one no-trump was slightly unorthodox. Most experts avoid such a bid with two suits unstopped. Nevertheless, the bid was a reasonable description of the South hand, and the final contract of three no-trump was certainly normal enough.

Abeles, holding the West cards, opened the six of spades. Declarer naturally played low from the dummy, and Tilles won with the queen. When South dropped the eight of spades it was fairly clear that there was little nourishment in the spade suit. Having decided to abandon the spades, Tilles still had to choose the most judicious shift. After some thought he decided to lead the seven of hearts.

This was a dangerous play in a match-point game. South might have a weird no-trump, based on a long minor suit. In that case declarer might already have nine tricks, and the king of hearts would give him an extra trick.

The risk seemed a good one to Tilles, especially since he knew that the actual South player was usually conservative. As it turned out, the shift to a low heart defeated the contract.

Declarer could take one heart and his seven tricks in the minor suits (if he chose to do so) but he had no play for nine tricks without leading a spade. This gave Abeles the chance to hop right up with the ace of spades and return his remaining heart. Now Tilles was in position to set the contract with the rest of the heart suit.

Communist Probe Causing Big Losses In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What effect has the congressional investigation of Communism in Hollywood had on the film business?

For one thing, a few hours' testimony in Washington can endanger or even wipe out an investment of $1,000,000.

That is what happened when Larry Parks told the House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee that he had once been a Communist but had drifted away from the party. His words made a risky venture out of what had appeared to be a box-office winner—a film called "Love Is Better Than Ever," in which Parks co-starred with Elizabeth Taylor.

M.G.M., which invested about $1,000,000 in the picture, has announced it has no plans for the release of the film. The studio is carefully watching straws in the wind to find out what the public's reaction will be toward Parks. Some, including members of the congressional committee, say Parks should be forgiven.

Another financial repercussion concerned director Frank Tuttle, who told the committee he had been a Communist but later quit. His producers had planned for him to direct a couple of pictures in Vienna but reported their backing had withdrawn after the publicity about Tuttle.

George Murphy, one of the industry's leading spokesmen, believes that publicity about movie Reds is one of the reasons the movie business has not been very good.

"I think the investigations have had a bad effect on movie business," he said. "... People I meet in tours through the country ask me what we are doing about 'all those Reds in Hollywood.' They... think the whole town is involved."

"I think it is time for the good Americans in the industry to combat the bad opinion that the Communists have brought on Hollywood..."
